

Second Hand DTH Drilling Rig for Sale in Brazil: Price List, Quotes & ROI Guide 2024

Second Hand DTH Drilling Rig for Sale in Brazil: Price List, Quotes & ROI Guide 2024

Why Second Hand DTH Rigs Are Booming in Brazil

Brazil's mining sector grew 6.2% last year - but new drilling rigs cost over $250,000. That's why second hand DTH drilling rig prices in Brazil dropped 30% since 2022 as contractors hunt for smarter deals. Jose Almeida, a mining operator in Minas Gerais, saved $92,000 buying a used 2020 Soilmec model - but only after navigating Brazil's chaotic used equipment market.

The Real Cost of Second Hand Rigs (With Live Data)

Here's what you'll pay in 2024 for used DTH drilling equipment:

5-year-old Chinese models: $45,000-$68,000

Refurbished European rigs (Atlas Copco/Sandvik): $85,000-$140,000

Brazilian-assembled units: 15-20% cheaper than imports

But watch out: 43% of buyers surveyed last month overpaid due to hidden maintenance costs. That's why Porto Alegre-based supplier DrillMax now offers free 90-day warranties on all certified used rigs.

3 Proven Ways to Get the Best Price

1. China vs. Local Suppliers: While Chinese platforms like Made-in-China list rigs from $38,000, shipping and tariffs add 18-25%. Sao Paulo dealer HeavyMach offers doorstep delivery with tax included.
2. Timing Matters: Prices dip 8-12% during Brazil's rainy season (Nov-Feb) when mining slows. Last December, a 2019 Furukawa HR2000 sold for $76,500 - 11% below its June value.
3. ROI Calculators Work: A $60,000 used rig drilling 8 hours/day pays itself off in 14 months at Brazil's average $210/hour contract rate. Always request the machine's service logs - rebuilt engines add 2-3 years to your ROI timeline.

How to Avoid Scams: A Buyer's Checklist

Demand 360-degree video tours showing hydraulic hoses/control panels

Verify CNC registration (Brazil's National Construction Machinery Registry)

Test compressor output - degraded models drop below 350 CFM
