Second Hand DTH Drilling Rig for Sale in USA 2025: Price List, ROI & Supplier Deals

Need a second hand DTH drilling rig in the USA but worried about budget or hidden costs? You're not alone. Contractors and mining companies are choosing pre-owned rigs to cut upfront costs by 40-70% compared to new models. Let's break down what drives price per piece, where to find wholesale deals, and how to maximize ROI on your purchase.

Why Second-Hand DTH Rigs Are Dominating the US Market

In 2024, over 62% of small-to-mid-sized drilling companies in Texas and Colorado bought used equipment. Why? New DTH rigs cost $250,000-$1M+, while second hand DTH drilling rig prices in the USA range from $100,000 to $300,000. Add inflation pressures and Biden's infrastructure bill - demand for affordable rigs just spiked 23% YoY.

Price List: What to Expect for 2025

Mid-tier rigs (2018-2020 models): $120,000-$180,000

High-capacity rigs (Atlas Copco, Sandvik): $220,000-$350,000

Refurbished units with warranties: +15-20% cost

Case Study: How a Texas Contractor Saved 57%

Pecos Drilling Co. bought a used 2019 Sandvik DE130 for $195,000 (vs. $450,000 new). After 18 months, their ROI hit 92% through three geothermal projects. Key factors? They negotiated a quotation with 6-month parts support and avoided "as-is" auctions.

3 Steps to Buy Smart in 2025

Verify hours worked and maintenance logs

Compare supplier deals from Florida to California

Request onsite inspections - 83% of buyers skip this!

Where to Find Reliable Suppliers (And What to Avoid)

Top platforms like MachineryTrader and Ritchie Bros. list 50-70 rigs monthly. But watch for rigs originally from China - some lack corrosion-resistant parts needed for US shale projects. For wholesale prices, Midwest auction hubs like Illinois offer bulk discounts up to 12%.
