Second Hand Drilling Bits in South Korea 2025: Price Lists, Quotation & Supplier Deals

Need second-hand drilling bits in South Korea but worried about costs? You're not alone. Over 47% of mining and construction companies now consider used drilling equipment to cut expenses. This guide reveals how to buy affordable drilling bits with verified price trends, trusted suppliers, and negotiation tactics.

Current Prices for Second-Hand Drilling Bits in South Korea

The average price per piece ranges from KRW280,000 to KRW1.2 million ($200-$850 USD), depending on bit size and wear. Smaller 4-inch bits cost 65% less than new ones, while larger 12-inch models save 40% - a key reason Hyundai Engineering bought 78 refurbished bits last quarter.

Why Prices Vary Drastically

South Korea's market has two main supplier types:

- Local resellers (cheaper but inconsistent quality)

- International vendors like China's SINOCORE (higher ROI with 6-month warranties)

How to Get Instant Quotations Without Scams

Case study: A Busan tunnel project saved KRW310 million by using a buying guide to compare 9 suppliers.

Always demand:

- High-resolution wear photos (90% of scams omit these)

- ISO 9001 certifications for refurbished bits

- Shipping costs from China or Germany (adds 12-18% to price lists)

Market Trend Alert: Used Equipment Demand Up 22%

South Korea's 2024 Construction Waste Act incentivizes reused tools - tax breaks now cover 15% of second-hand drilling bit purchases. Smart buyers lock deals before the October deadline.

3 Ways to Verify Your Supplier

Top-rated vendors like Seoul Heavy Machinery pass these checks:

- On-site hardness testing (HRC 58+ for granite bits)

- Third-party inspection reports (free for orders over KRW5 million)

- Local pickup options at Incheon Port
