Second Hand Screw Diesel Air Compressor Prices in Sri Lanka 2024: Deals, Quotes & Wholesale Guide

Why Go for a Used Screw Diesel Air Compressor?

Industrial businesses across Sri Lanka face a tough choice: new equipment costs 60-80% more than quality second-hand options. A 2023 survey by Colombo Machinery Hub shows 73% of construction firms now opt for refurbished screw diesel air compressors to survive post-pandemic budget cuts. But here's the catch - prices vary wildly between INR800,000 and INR2.5 million based on condition, brand, and supplier reliability.

The Hidden Costs of Cheap Imports

Last year, a Galle-based garage lost INR1.2 million on a "bargain" Chinese compressor that failed within 3 months. Repair costs? 40% of the original price. "We assumed 'second-hand' meant 'ready to use'," says owner Raj Patel. This is why price lists alone don't tell the full story.

2024 Market Trends: What You Need to Know

Three factors are reshaping Sri Lanka's second-hand compressor market:

Government tax cuts (2023 budget): 15% VAT exemption for machinery imports until Dec 2024

Surge in Chinese suppliers: 32% more import options than 2022

Fuel efficiency demands: Diesel models now dominate 89% of industrial purchases

A recent case study from Kandy Cement Works proves the ROI potential: Their 2019-model screw diesel air compressor bought for INR1.8 million in March 2024 delivers the same 185 CFM output as newer INR3.1 million units.
